functions that correspond to the Commission's functions; and

(b) is satisfied that appropriate protections are or will be in place to maintain the confidentiality of anything provided.

(2) When carrying out its functions, the Commission may use any information, or a copy of any document, provided to it by an overseas agency.

(b) in connection with the sale or grant or the possible sale or grant of an interest in land or with the promotion by any means of the sale or grant of an interest in land, if either of the following apply:

(c) the person does not intend to provide them, or to provide them as offered; or

(d) the person does not have reasonable grounds to believe that he or she will be able to provide them, or to provide them as offered.

59. Bait advertising-(1) A person must not, in trade, advertise for supply, at a specified price, goods or services that the person does not intend to offer for supply at that price for a period that is, and in quantities that are, reasonable having regard to the nature of the market in which the person carries on business and the nature of the advertisement.

(2) A person must not, in trade, advertise for supply, at a specified price, goods or services if the person does not have reasonable grounds for believing that they can be supplied by that person at that price for a period that is, and in quantities that are, reasonable having regard to the nature of the market in which the person carries on business and the nature of the advertisement.

(3) A person who has advertised goods or services for supply at a specified price must offer the goods or services for supply at that price for a period that is, and in quantities that are, reasonable having regard to the nature of the market in which the person carries on business and the nature of the advertisement.

(4) In proceedings against a person for a failure to offer goods or services to a person (“customer”) under subsection (3), it is a defence if it is established that:

(a) the person offered to supply to the customer immediately, or to procure another person to supply to the customer within a reasonable time -

(i) goods or services of the kind advertised, in a reasonable quantity and at the advertised price; or

(ii) equivalent goods or services in a reasonable quantity and at the advertised price, and, if the offer was accepted by the customer, that the person so supplied, or procured another person so to supply, the goods or services offered; or

(b) both -

(i) the advertisement mentioned in subsection (3) stated the quantity of the goods available for sale at the specified price; and

(ii) the person was offering for sale, at the relevant time, at that price, at least that quantity of the goods.

60. Referral selling-(1) A person must not, in trade, induce another person (“customer”) to acquire goods or services by representing that the customer will, after the agreement for the acquisition is made, receive a rebate, commission or other benefit in return for giving the person the names of prospective customers, or otherwise assisting the person to supply goods or services to other persons, if receipt of the rebate, commission, or other benefit is contingent on an event occurring after the agreement is made.

(2) Subsection (1) does not apply if the acquisition of goods is for resupply.

61. Forged, etc., trade marks-(1) A person must not, in trade:

(a) forge a trade mark; or

- (b) falsely apply to goods a trade mark or sign so nearly resembling a trade mark as to be likely to mislead or deceive; or
- (c) falsely use, in relation to the provision of services, a trade mark or sign so nearly resembling a trade mark as to be likely to mislead or deceive.

(2) In this section, a person is taken to forge a trade mark if the person:

- (a) without the consent of the proprietor of the trade mark, makes that trade mark or a sign so nearly resembling that trade mark as to be likely to mislead or deceive; or
- (b) falsifies a genuine trade mark, whether by alteration, effacement or otherwise.

(3) In this section, “sign” or “trade mark” has the same respective meaning in the Intellectual Property Act 2011.

62. Demanding or accepting payment without intending to supply as ordered - A person must not, in trade, demand or accept payment or other consideration for goods or services if, at the time of the demand or acceptance, the person:

- (a) does not intend to supply the goods or services; or
- (b) intends to supply materially different goods or services; or
- (c) does not have reasonable grounds to believe that he or she will be able to supply the goods or services within a specified period or, if no period is specified, within a reasonable period.

63. Misleading representations about certain businesses-(1)
A person must not, in trade, make a representation that is false or misleading concerning the profitability or risk, or any other material aspect, of a business activity that the person represents as one that can be, or can be to a substantial extent, carried on at or from a person’s place of residence.

(2) A person who invites, whether by advertisement or otherwise, persons to engage or participate, or to offer or apply to engage or participate, in a business activity requiring:

- (a) the performance by the persons concerned of work; or

- (b) the investment of money by the persons concerned and the performance by them of work associated with the investment,

64. Harassment and coercion - A person must not use physical force, harassment or coercion in connection with the supply or possible supply of goods or services in trade or payment for goods or services.

65. Pyramid selling and similar schemes-(1) A person must not promote or operate a scheme for the supply of goods or services for reward if:

- (a) to many participants in the scheme, the scheme constitutes primarily an opportunity to buy or sell an investment opportunity, whether personally or through an agent, rather than an opportunity to buy or supply goods or services; and
- (b) the scheme is or is likely to be unfair to many of the participants in the scheme in that -
 - (i) the financial rewards for many of those participants are dependent on the recruitment of additional participants (whether or not at successively lower levels); and
 - (ii) the number of additional participants in the scheme that must be recruited to produce reasonable financial rewards to participants in the scheme is not attainable or is not likely to be attainable by many of the participants.

(2) A person must not promote or operate a scheme of the type commonly known as a chain letter scheme (whether or not it provides for the supply of goods or services) that is likely to be unfair to many of the participants in the scheme, in that:

- (a) the financial rewards for many of the participants are dependent on the recruitment of additional participants; and
- (b) the number of additional participants that must be recruited to produce reasonable financial rewards to participants in the scheme is not attainable or is not likely to be attainable by many of the participants.

Division 3 - Consumer guarantees

66. When goods and services supplied - For this Division:

- (a) goods are taken to be supplied at the time when the consumer acquires the right to possession of the goods; and
- (b) services are taken to be supplied at the time when they are provided.

67. Division does not limit other laws - This Division applies in addition to any other law.

68. Application - This Division:

- (a) applies despite any provision to the contrary in any agreement; and
- (b) does not apply to goods supplied by auction; and
- (c) does not give a person a remedy against a charitable organisation in respect of the supply by the organisation of goods or services for the principal purpose of benefiting the person to whom the supply is made.

69. Title to goods-(1) If goods are supplied, in trade, to a person who acquires them as a consumer, there is:

- (a) a guarantee that the supplier has a right to transfer the title to the goods to the consumer; and
- (b) a guarantee that the goods are free from any security interest other than one -
 - (i) disclosed to the consumer before the consumer agreed to the supply; or
 - (ii) created by, or with the express consent of, the consumer; and
- (c) a guarantee that the consumer has the right to undisturbed possession of the goods.

(2) Subsection (1)(a) and (b) does not apply to a supply of goods by lease or hire.

(3) If the supply is by way of lease or hire, subsection (1)(c) applies but only for the term of the lease or hiring.

(4) Subsection (1)(c) does not apply so far as the right to undisturbed possession is expressly varied:

- (a) if the supply is by a hire purchase agreement, by a provision of the agreement; or
- (b) by a security, or a term of the agreement for supply, in respect of which the consumer has received -
 - (i) oral advice, acknowledged in writing by the consumer, as to the way in which the consumer's right to undisturbed possession of the goods could be affected, sufficient to enable a reasonable consumer to understand the general nature and effect of the variation; and
 - (ii) a written copy of the agreement for supply or security, or a written copy of the part of the agreement that provides for the variation.

70. Goods to be of acceptable quality-(1) If goods are supplied, in trade, to a person who acquires them as a consumer, there is a guarantee that the goods are of acceptable quality.

(2) For this section, goods are of acceptable quality if they are:

- (a) as fit for all the purposes for which goods of the type in question are commonly supplied; and
- (b) as acceptable in appearance and finish; and
- (c) as free from minor defects; and
- (d) as safe; and
- (e) as durable,

as a reasonable consumer, fully acquainted with the state and condition of the goods, including any hidden defects, would regard as acceptable, having regard to:

- (f) the nature of the goods; and
- (g) the price, where relevant; and
- (h) any statement made about the goods on any packaging or label on the goods; and
- (i) any representation made about the goods by the supplier or the manufacturer; and
- (j) all other relevant circumstances of the supply of the goods.

(3) If any defects in goods have been specifically drawn to the consumer's attention before he or she agreed to the supply then, even though a reasonable consumer may not have regarded those goods as acceptable with those defects, the goods do not fail to comply with the guarantee as to acceptable quality merely because of those defects.

(4) For subsection (3), for goods displayed for sale or hire, defects disclosed on a written notice displayed with the goods are taken to have been specifically drawn to the consumer's attention.

(5) If the consumer examined the goods before he or she agreed to the supply, the goods do not fail to comply with the guarantee as to acceptable quality merely because of a defect that the consumer ought to have discovered in the course of that examination even though a reasonable consumer may not have regarded those goods as acceptable with that defect.

(6) In determining whether goods comply with the guarantee of acceptable quality, the consumer may ignore the effect of any use of the goods, or extent of use of the goods, that is inconsistent with the way in which or the extent to which a reasonable consumer would expect to use the goods.

(7) In this section, "defect", for goods, means a failure of the goods to comply with the guarantee as to acceptable quality.

71. Goods to be fit for particular purpose-(1) If goods are supplied, in trade, to a person who acquires them as a consumer, there is:

- (a) a guarantee that the goods are reasonably fit for any particular purpose that the consumer makes known, expressly or by implication, to the supplier as the purpose for which the goods are being acquired by the consumer; and
 - (b) a guarantee that the goods are reasonably fit for any particular purpose for which the supplier represents that they will be fit.
- (2) Those guarantees do not apply if:
- (a) the consumer did not rely on the supplier's skill or judgment; or
 - (b) it would have been unreasonable for the consumer to have relied on the supplier's skill or judgment.

(3) This section applies whether or not the purpose is a purpose for which the goods are commonly supplied.

72. Goods to comply with description-(1) If goods are supplied by description, in trade, to a person who acquires them as a consumer, there is a guarantee that the goods correspond with the description.

(2) A supply of goods is not prevented from being a supply by description by reason only that, being exposed for sale or hire, they are selected by a consumer.

73. Goods to comply with sample - If goods are supplied, in trade, to a person who acquires them as a consumer by reference to a sample or demonstration model:

- (a) there is a guarantee that the goods correspond with the sample or demonstration model in quality; and
- (b) there is a guarantee that the consumer will have a reasonable opportunity to compare the goods with the sample or demonstration model.

74. Consumer's remedies for goods that do not comply with guarantee-(1) If goods supplied in trade to a person who acquires them as a consumer do not comply with a consumer guarantee (in this section and section 75, a "failure"), the consumer may, by notice to the supplier, require the supplier to remedy the failure.

(2) The notice may be oral or in writing.

(3) The notice must be given as soon as reasonably practicable, and in any event not more than four (4) weeks, after the consumer became aware of the failure or ought reasonably have become aware of the failure.

(4) A supplier may comply with a requirement to remedy a failure by (at the supplier's election):

- (a) repairing the goods; or
- (b) if the failure relates to title, curing the defect in title; or
- (c) replacing the goods with goods of identical type; or
- (d) providing a refund to the consumer of any money paid, and the value of any other consideration provided, by the consumer in respect of the goods.

(5) This section does not limit any other right that the consumer may have at general law (including a right to damages).

(6) If a consumer receives goods under subsection (4)(c), the replacement goods are, for the purposes of this Act, taken to be supplied by the supplier and the consumer guarantees, and the obligations under this Act, for a supply of goods to a person who acquires them as a consumer, apply.

(7) A consumer does not have a right to require a remedy under this section if:

- (a) the goods have been disposed of by the consumer or have been lost or destroyed while in the possession of a person other than the supplier or an agent of the supplier; or
- (b) the non-compliance of the goods with the relevant consumer guarantee occurred after delivery to the consumer for reasons not related to their state or condition at the time of supply; or
- (c) the goods have been attached to or incorporated in real or personal property and cannot be detached or isolated without damaging them or the property.

75. Rejection of goods-(1) If the supplier has not complied with a requirement under section 74 within a period that is reasonable (having regard to the nature of the goods and the nature of the failure), the consumer may, by notice to the supplier, reject the goods.

(2) The notice:

- (a) may be oral or in writing; and
- (b) may require the supplier to refund to the consumer any money paid and the value of any other consideration provided by the consumer for the goods; and
- (c) must include a statement of the grounds for rejection; and
- (d) must be given as soon as reasonably practicable, and in any event not more than four (4) weeks, after the period mentioned in subsection (1) has ended.

(3) If a consumer exercises a right to reject goods, the consumer must return the goods to the supplier unless:

- (a) the goods have already been returned to, or retrieved by, the supplier; or
- (b) because of the nature of the failure of the goods to comply with the relevant guarantee, the goods cannot be returned, moved or transported without significant cost to the consumer, in which case the supplier may collect the goods at its expense.

(4) If ownership in the goods has passed to the consumer before the consumer exercises the right to reject the goods, the ownership in the goods re-vests in the supplier when the supplier receives the notice of rejection.

(5) A consumer does not have a right to reject goods under this Act if:

- (a) the goods have been disposed of by the consumer or have been lost or destroyed while in the possession of a person other than the supplier or an agent of the supplier; or
- (b) the non-compliance of the goods with the relevant consumer guarantee occurred after delivery to the consumer for reasons not related to their state or condition at the time of supply; or
- (c) the goods have been attached to or incorporated in real or personal property and cannot be detached or isolated without damaging them or the property.

(6) If a consumer exercises a right to reject goods, the supplier must provide a refund in cash of the money paid or the value of any other consideration provided, or both, as the case may require.

(7) The obligation to refund cannot be satisfied by permitting the consumer to acquire goods from the supplier.

76. Services to be supplied with care and skill - If services are supplied, in trade, to a person who acquires them as a consumer, there is a guarantee that the services will be provided with reasonable care and skill.

77. Services to be fit for particular purpose-(1) If services are supplied, in trade, to a person who acquires them as a consumer, there is a guarantee that the services, and any product resulting from the services, will be:

- (a) reasonably fit for any particular purpose; and
- (b) of such a nature and quality that they can reasonably be expected to achieve a particular result, that the consumer makes known to the supplier, before or at the time of making the agreement for the supply of the services, as the purpose for which the services are to be provided or the result that the consumer desires to achieve.

(2) Subsection (1) does not apply if:

- (a) the consumer did not rely on the supplier's skill or judgment; or
- (b) it would be unreasonable for the consumer to have relied on the supplier's skill or judgment.

78. Services to be completed in reasonable time - If:

- (a) services are supplied, in trade, to a person who acquires them as a consumer; and
 - (b) the agreement for the supply of the services does not specify the time for the services to be completed, or does not specify how that time is to be determined,
- there is a guarantee that the services will be completed within a reasonable time.

79. Consumer's remedies for services that do not comply with consumer guarantee-(1) If services supplied in trade to a person who acquires them as a consumer do not comply with a consumer guarantee (in this section and section 80, a "failure"), the consumer may, by notice to the supplier, require the supplier to remedy the failure.

(2) The notice:

- (a) may be oral or in writing; and
- (b) must be given as soon as reasonably practicable, and in any event not more than four (4) weeks, after the consumer became aware of the failure or ought reasonably have become aware of the failure.

(3) A supplier may comply with the requirement by (at the supplier's election):

- (a) the supply of the services again; or
- (b) a refund to the consumer of any money paid, and the value of any other consideration provided, by the consumer in respect of the services.

80. Cancelling agreement for services-(1) If the supplier has not complied with a requirement under section 79 within a period that is reasonable (having regard to the nature of the services and the nature of the failure), the consumer may, by notice to the supplier, cancel the agreement for supply of the services.

(2) The notice:

- (a) may be oral or in writing; and
- (b) may require the supplier, orally or in writing, to refund to the consumer any money paid, and the value of any other consideration provided, by the consumer for the services; and
- (c) must be given as soon as reasonably practicable, and in any event not more than four (4) weeks, after the period mentioned in subsection (1) has ended.

(3) If a supplier supplies services again under subsection (1), the new services are, for the purposes of this Act, taken to be supplied by the supplier and the consumer guarantees, and the obligations under this Act, in respect of a supply of services to a person who acquires them as a consumer apply.

(4) Cancellation of an agreement for the supply of services:

- (a) may be made known by words, or by conduct indicating an intention to cancel, or both, and it is not necessary to use any particular form of words so long as the intention to cancel is made known; and
- (b) cannot take effect -
 - (i) before the time at which the cancellation is made known to the supplier; or
 - (ii) if it is not reasonably practicable to communicate with the supplier, before the time at which the consumer indicates, by means that are reasonable in the circumstances, the consumer's intention to cancel the agreement.

(5) This section does not limit any other right that the consumer may have at general law (including a right to damages).

81. Effects of cancellation-(1) If a consumer cancels, under this Act, an agreement for the supply of services:

- (a) the consumer is entitled to recover from the supplier the amount of money paid, and the value of any other consideration provided, by the consumer for the services; and
- (b) subject to paragraph (a), so far as the agreement has been performed at the time of the cancellation, neither

- party to the agreement is to be divested, because of the cancellation, of any property transferred or money paid under the agreement; and
- (c) so far as the agreement is unperformed at the time of the cancellation, neither party to the agreement is obliged or entitled to perform it.
- (2) Subsection (1) does not affect:
- (a) a right of a party to the agreement to recover damages for misrepresentation or repudiation or breach of the agreement; or
- (b) a right of the consumer to recover damages for non-compliance with a consumer guarantee; or
- (c) a right of the consumer under this Act to reject goods.

82. Ancillary power of the Court to grant relief-(1) If a consumer cancels, under this Act, an agreement for the supply of services, the Court may make any of the orders under subsection (2), in any proceedings by, or on application made for the purpose by:

- (a) the consumer; or
- (b) the supplier; or
- (c) a person claiming through or under the consumer or the supplier; or
- (d) another person if it is material for the other person to know whether relief under this section will be granted.
- (2) For subsection (1), the orders are:
- (a) an order that some or all of the property that was the subject of the agreement, or the consideration, be returned or repaid;
- (b) an order vesting that property in a specified person;
- (c) an order awarding damages in respect of a breach of the agreement;
- (d) an order directing a party to the proceedings to do or not do a specified thing in relation to another party to the proceedings;
- (e) any other order that the Court considers appropriate.
- (3) An order under this section may be subject to conditions specified in the order.
- (4) The matters to be considered in determining whether to make an order under this section include:

- (a) the benefit obtained or intended to be obtained from the agreement by a party to the agreement; and
- (b) the costs incurred by a party in connection with the agreement, including in connection with preparing to give effect to the agreement.

(5) No order may be made under this section contrary to Article 14 of the Constitution.

83. Agreements for work and materials-(1) The consumer guarantees for goods apply whether or not the goods are supplied in connection with a service.

(2) The consumer guarantees for services apply whether or not the services are supplied with or in conjunction or in relation to goods.

(3) If a service to be supplied under an agreement is merely incidental to the supply of goods, the consumer cannot cancel the agreement under this Act if the consumer has or had the right to reject the goods under this Part.

Division 4 - Obligations of traders

84. Traders to display prices-(1) A trader commits an offence if:

- (b) how that information is to be provided in relation to the supply or possible supply of the goods or services.

(2) A consumer information standard may adopt some or all of a published standard, and may do so with specified modifications.

(3) Before making a consumer information standard, the Minister must consult as widely as practicable, but a failure to do so does not affect the validity of the standard.

(4) A consumer information standard comes into force on publication in the Savali.

(5) A consumer information standard does not apply to goods to which an order under section 7A of the Drugs Act 1967 applies (whether the order is made before or after the commencement of this Part).

(6) If:

- (a) a consumer information standard for any particular goods or services is in force; and

 - (a) the defendant made all reasonable inquiries to determine whether or not the supply was contrary to the requirements of the consumer information standard; and
 - (b) having regard to the outcome of those inquiries, the defendant reasonably believed that the supply was not contrary to the requirements of the standard.

88. Product safety standards for goods-(1) Subject to this section, the Minister may, with the approval of the Cabinet, make orders (“product safety standards”) prescribing, for specified goods, standards in relation to preventing or reducing the risk of injury to persons.

(2) A product safety standard may provide for any of the following:

- (b) testing the goods during or after manufacture or processing;
- (c) markings, warnings, or instructions to accompany the goods.

(3) A product safety standard may adopt some or all of a published standard, and may do so with specified modifications.

(4) Before making a product safety standard, the Minister must consult as widely as practicable, but a failure to do so does not affect the validity of the standard.

(5) A product safety standard does not apply to goods to which an order under section 7A of the Food and Drugs Act 1967 applies (whether the order is made before or after the commencement of this Part).

(6) A product safety standard comes into force on publication in the Savali.

(b) a reasonably foreseeable use (including a misuse) of goods or services of a particular kind will or may cause injury to persons, the Minister may, by notice in the Savali, declare the goods or services to be unsafe (a “product safety notice”).

(2) Unless sooner revoked, a product safety notice remains in force for 18 months, but the Minister may re-make the notice under this section.

(3) A product safety notice for particular goods may not be made (and, if made, is of no effect) if a product safety standard is in force for the goods.

(4) If product safety notice for particular goods or services is in force, a person who supplies, in trade, in Samoa, those goods or services commits an offence and is liable on conviction to:

(a) for an individual, a fine not exceeding 200 penalty units, or imprisonment for a term not exceeding two (2) years, or both; and

(b) for a body corporate, a fine not exceeding 1,000 penalty units.

 - (b) the person has not recalled the goods or taken appropriate action to recall the goods,
- the Minister may, by notice to the person (a “product recall notice”), require the person to do any or all of the following, as specified in the notice, within a period specified in the notice:

 - (d) disclose to the public information relating to -
 - (i) the characteristics of the goods that render them unsafe; or
 - (ii) the circumstances in which use of the goods is unsafe; or
 - (iii) any other matters relating to the goods or the use of the goods as may be specified.
- (2) A person who fails to comply with a requirement of a product recall notice given to the person commits an offence and is liable on conviction to:
- (a) for an individual, a fine not exceeding 200 penalty units or imprisonment for a term not exceeding two (2) years, or both; and
 - (b) for a body corporate, a fine not exceeding 1000 penalty units.

91. Services safety standards-(1) Subject to this section, the Minister may, with the approval of the Cabinet, make orders (“services safety standards”) prescribing, for specified services, standards in relation to preventing or reducing the risk of injury to persons.

(2) A services safety standard:
